

Arthur R. Marshall Foundation

September 2011 Update

Rebecca Stanek Joins Staff

Rebecca Stanek has joined the Marshall Foundation in the newly created position, Everglades Research & Education Specialist. Expanding the Foundation's acclaimed educational efforts, she will be leading new higher education research and science-based programs focusing on high school and college level students who are pursuing environmental careers.

55 Palm Beach Atlantic University Students Participate in Everglades Restoration Project

Incoming freshman from Palm Beach Atlantic University had their chance to literally get their feet wet in the Everglades! The students joined Marshall Foundation staff and biologists from the US Fish & Wildlife Service to find and remove bright pink egg clusters of non-native snails that have a negative impact on snail kites, a native endangered bird whose diet consist of native apple snails. In total, the students collected approximately 63,000 eggs.
